Light mores

The Van Gogh Museum in Amsterdam presents 'Light Mores', an exhibition in which the representation of prostitution in French art from the years 1850 to 1910 is central. With works by Van Gogh, Manet and Picasso

Prostitution in art

In the second half of the 19th century prostitution was a popular topic among artists. The artists imagined prostitution eagerly as an aspect of modern urban life in Paris and painted rich courtesans in their salon, soliciting women on the boulevards and the decrepit prostitutes in brothels.

Famous masterpieces in Amsterdam

In 'Light Mores' in the Van Gogh Museum you will admire more than 100 paintings and prints of impressive artists like Manet, Degas, Toulouse-Lautrec, Picasso and Van Gogh. The exhibition also includes a number of special objects, such as a 19th-century bed.

Hollanders van de Gouden Eeuw

This exhibition, a collaboration between the Hermitage Amsterdam Museum and Rijksmuseum, shows an impressive selection of more than thirty gigantic group portraits from the 17th and 18th centuries.

Huge Masterpieces in Amsterdam

Among the selected works are some of the greatest paintings from the Golden Age, by artists such as Rembrandt van Rijn, Govert Flinck and Nicolaes Pickenoy. Because of their huge size they are rarely exhibited to the public, which makes this collection even more exclusive. Rembrandt's 'Anatomy Lesson of Dr. Deijman' and shot portraits of Govert Flinck and Nicolaes Pickenoy are just some examples of masterpieces that can be seen in 'Dutch of the Golden Age'.

Mighty citizens

The selected works give a vivid picture of the culture in the Golden Age and how daily life looked like in those days. The thread of the story is who the gunmen, regents of the paintings were and what they did in the 17th century city culture. The exhibition gives a face to these influential men and women who came mainly from Amsterdam.

Amy Winehouse: A Family Portrait

A glimpse into the private life of one of the most successful artists of recent decades: Amy Winehouse. Not the predominant tragic picture is given of Amy, but a lesser known side of her life. You see her as a teenager and young woman who was Jewish and grew up in a typical London Jewish environment.

World Press Photo

The traveling exhibition of prize winning photos of the largest and most important annual international competition for press photography comes every year in April to Amsterdam. The exhibition takes place again in the Nieuwe Kerk on the Dam, from April 16 to July 10, 2016.

Best press photo's in the world in Amsterdam

Every year professional press photographers, photo agencies, newspapers and magazines worldwide are invited to submit their best news photos from the previous year. The best examples are selected for a traveling exhibition with more than 200 photos. You will see how press photographers around the world work and how the media brings the news with photos into focus.

The latest developments in photojournalism

One of the most pervasive ways to take note of what is happening in the world, is through photo reports of press photographers. 'World Press Photo' is a reflection of the latest trends and developments in photojournalism. It not only brings the (sometimes gruesome) reality of news and current development here and elsewhere in the world, but also the wondrous beauty of life, sports, art, science or the enchanting atmosphere of nature.

Emotional moments in picture

Het gebeurt regelmatig dat bezoekers aan de tentoonstelling tot tranen geroerd zijn of met kippenvel op de armen staan, wanneer zij zo door de zowel prachtige als trieste foto's geraakt worden. De tentoonstelling in de Nieuwe Kerk op de Dam is slechts een paar maanden te zien, dus wacht niet te lang met een bezoek.

It is common that the visitors to the exhibition are stirred to tears or stand with goosebumps on the arms when they are so affected by the both beautiful and sad pictures.
